UEBRA7/WC Street Loss at 477 George lists of crime authors who were of particular interest to our customers. All in all, I seem to remember compiling about 20 lists, which were available free. After we issued the first Crime Chronicle from 66 King Street. I compiled a complete Crime

Catalogue - a long and arduous task - and typed it up before sending it to the printer (this was before computers!).

In March 1987, being a martyr to the cause, I prepared a second edition and again typed it up for the printer. In 1994, we issued a third and final 94-page edition called Crime Scene, which thankfully was compiled with the assistance of a computer! This included a True Crime section and a list that matched characters with their creators. The fiction section also highlighted Australian authors. It was a huge task and a very timeconsuming one.

Although I always had good intentions to revise this edition, that never quite happened. Nowadays, what with the internet and websites, it is probably somewhat passé, but l believe, and I hope, these were useful tools at the time.

A CASE SOLVED

Sunday

Monday

On Sunday 3 February, I went along to Partners in Crime at the Hughenden Hotel to hear Breanda Cross speak about her book Shark Arm Unhooked? (Pb 264pp $24.95). It was fascinating to hear about her interest in the infamous and sensational (at the time) Shark Arm Case and how she came to write her book. Although told in novel form, Breanda thinks it should be called 'faction' as the book is peopled with real people and what they did. Drinking, drug dealing, muggings and the occasional murder, these were everyday occurrences in Sydney's Surry Hills in 1935. Then something happened. Something so bizarre, so strange, that the world tuned in daily to find out what happened in the Shark Arm Case. They never did find out... until now. Meet all the famous and infamous characters of the time including Tilly Devine and Kate Leigh. It is a story of a time when the crims were bad, the cops were corrupt, and it didn't pay to squeal. A fascinating journey back in time! I have a few copies left from the talk and that is all I can get, so first come first served.

Police Detectives in History,

1750-1950 266pp Hb $137.50 While the history of the uniformed police has prompted considerable research, the historical study of police detectives has been largely neglected; confined for the most part to a chapter or a brief mention in books dealing with the development of the police in general. The collection redresses this imbalance. Investigating themes central to the history of detection, such as the inchoate distinction between criminals and detectives, the professionalisation of detective work and the establishment of colonial police forces, the book provides the first detailed examination of detectives as an occupational group, with a distinct occupational culture.
