

CWA DAGGER AWARDS 2007 PETER TEMPLE WINS DUNCAN LAWRIE DAGGER

Congratulations to Australian Peter Temple on winning the Duncan Lawrie Dagger, the world's most prestigious award for crime fiction for The Broken Shore (352pp Pb $22.95). Formerly known as the Golden Dagger, past winners of this award include literary giants John le Carré, lan Rankin and Patricia Cornwell. Short-listed against wellknown writers James Lee Burke, Gillian Flynn and Giles Blunt, Temple thought his chances of winning were slim. "You're up against some of the world's best crime writers in English. I was proud enough just to be the first Aussie to make the shortlist, let alone win." The Broken Shore, Temple's 8th novel, was described by judges as "a well-written crime novel with excellent characterisation mingled with a subtle exploration of contemporary Australian landscape and mores. This is a first class read with a sympathetic, engrossing police protagonist." Until recently, it had not been printed in the UK as it was "too Australian". Temple has won five Ned Kelly awards and is the first Australian to win a Gold Dagger.

The Duncan Lawrie International Dagger for the best crime novel translated into English has for the second year running been won by the writer/translator team of Fred Vargas and Sîan Reynolds, this time for Wash This Blood Clean from My Hand (see page 9, Pb $29).

Newcomer Gillian Flynn achieved remarkable success with Sharp Objects (Pb $29), winning both the Ian Fleming Steel Dagger and the New Blood Dagger. It is a tribute to the broad appeal of her book that it was singled out by three separate panels of judges, acting independently.

The CWA Dagger in the Library is awarded to "the author of crime fiction whose work is currently giving the greatest enjoyment to readers". Authors are nominated by UK libraries and readers' groups and judged by a panel of librarians. The winner this year was Stuart MacBride.

"His books tell of life in all its grim reality, but this only adds to the appeal of this truly impressive new author... the grimmest of subjects, but leavened (thankfully) with dashes of humour. He's bad news for the Aberdeen tourist industry, but great news for crime readers."

The Cartier Diamond Dagger, for sustained excellence in the genre of crime writing, was won by John Harvey.

288pp Pb $24.95 Meet Lennie McPherson, the man who came to be known as the Mr Big of Australian crime. Brutality punctuated his whole life. Corruption was his mark. He was a standover man, a murderer, a rapist and a thief. He ran crooked police and corrupt politicians. He was involved in drugs and prostitution. He did business with the Mafia and the CIA. Reeves uncovers a heart of evil and takes us deep into a dark and violent criminal world. It is a story that could only be told after Lennie's death. Due Aug

Mr Sin: The Abe Saffron Dossier

300pp Pb $24.95

Reeves has been gathering information on Abe Saffron for over 40 years, an activity that didn't go unnoticed by Saffron, who tried to entrap Reeves in a bribery/blackmail sting. Upon Saffron's death in September 2006, Reeves could finally, and safely, reveal all. And what a story it is! Far from being the innocent businessman he claimed to be, Saffron led a life that reads like that of a real-life Godfather. He trafficked in drugs, ran prostitution and gambling rings, was a master of bribery, a corrupter of police, politicians and the judiciary, and not averse to extreme violence. This book makes for shocking and disturbing reading, and will leave readers in no doubt that Saffron well and truly deserved the moniker 'Mr Sin'. Due Aug (Australian)

Honor Killing: Race, Rape and Clarence Darrow's Spectacular Last Case 446pp Pb $26.95

In 1931 in Hawaii, Thalia Massie, the aristocratic wife of a naval officer, accused five non-white men of gang rape. When the trial ended in a hung jury, her mother arranged for one of the suspects to be murdered - an act sanctioned by sympathetic whites as an 'honour killing'. The ensuing murder trial, Clarence Darrow's last, enthralled the nation and exposed the shocking realities of a Hawaiian paradise. Due Aug (American)

Female Serial Killers: How and Why Women Become Monsters

Pb $30.00 496pp

Society is conditioned to think of murderers and predators as men, but in this title, the author exposes and investigates the phenomenon of women who kill and the political, economic, social and sexual implications. From history's earliest recorded cases of homicidal females to Irma Grese, the Nazi Beast of Belsen, from Britain's notorious child-slayer Myra Hindley to 'Honeymoon Killer' Martha Beck, from the sensational murder-spree of Aileen Wournos, to cult killers, homicidal missionaries and the sexy femme fatale, the author challenges the ordinary standards of good and evil and defies the accepted perceptions of gender role and identity.
